The latest New Industry Report

European industry is key to job creation and growth and, simultaneously, plays an important role in decarbonisation of the European economy. In this context energy efficiency is an important and cost-efficient tool, and thus the EEFIG Working Group on Industry has assessed the main obstacles and drivers for improved energy efficiency in industry, identified best practices, and developed recommendations for industry, financial institutions, and policy makers.

European Energy Efficiency Financing Coalition

The European Commission is working towards launching a high-level European Energy Efficiency Financing Coalition. The coalition will be based on the successful Energy Efficiency Financial Institutions Group (EEFIG) and will work towards increasing the mobilisation of private financing for energy efficiency and make it available for citizens and enterprises in support of the targets and policies set out in the 'Fit for 55' package.

It is envisioned that the Coalition will happen through specific commitments by Financial Institutions and Member States, with the goal to create the necessary framework conditions for scaling up private finance for energy efficiency.

The Commission is currently working on formalising the concrete objectives, structure and functioning of the Coalition, and will in the coming weeks reach out to some potential members and key stakeholders - including the EEFIG community - to get feedback on the current draft on the set-up. When the key objectives have been formalised, you will, through EEFIG, receive further information on the Coalition, what it entails, and how to enter as a member or otherwise support the coalition.

Thank you for your time and interest

We will end off by wishing you a safe Winter. With all the work, engagement, and contributions we face at EEFIG everywhere we turn up, we believe we are on the right track to a more energy efficient future. We are looking forward to returning with more exciting updates for 2023 and want to thank you for your time and interest.
